

What if God has no name?
by Maggie Allen

What if a name he does not claim!
Instead, he sends an invitation
To explore his emanation
Bringing us to mystery, purpose, identity
Into sacred self and unlimited divinity
Offended? Absolutely not!
Dear Helen, we bid you not to stop
Unpeel, uncover
Help us discover
The exposure of His breath
In this Christ conscious quest
Supreme, overall, nameless One
Guide us, by the nature of your son
Omni, the all and everywhere
In creation and beyond, to share
In oneness of heart
In you, in us, from the start
We are what you are
One who is near and not afar
All that is within
Guides what will begin
We know we need not look outside
If in you we will abide
No more leanness of soul
No King cries, just a grasp on the Infinite whole
Divine flow
Cause us to know
Our awakened state
And the miracles You make
No limitation,
But a holy perpetual invitation
To dive, to thrive
To cause to revive
In our sacred selves
And the God code within our cells
Cries, Yod, Hei, Vav Hei
So we choose to unbox You, if we may
To let you exist as you choose
With every idol to cut and lose
Intimate one, our pure Being

The Sovereign and All-Seeing
We give permission to become what we say
To rest in 'that' and to become what may
May the symphony of breath
Cause us to soar, and put to death
Constructiveness, destructiveness
And unbox our Christ consciousness
Like a caged bird Father, we set you free
To reveal Yourself, completely!
